These are the three big founding families of Québec: On Thursday 6 June 1647, Pierre Tremblay (of Randonnai village, Perche, on the edge of Pays d'Ouche) joined Noël Juchereau aboard La Marguerite sailing for Nouveau France: Pierre Tremblay and Ozanne Achon gave birth to the largest francophone family in North America. In 1657, Noël Simard left his native France with his father Pierre, a stone mason, by the port of La Rochelle; leaving behind, mother, siblings, friends and relatives to come to Nouveau France and founded one of the largest Québecois families. Claude le Petit Bouchard and Julien Fortin were engaged by Robert Giffard in March 1650, at the White Horse Inn (Hôtel du Cheval Blanc), situated on the road leading to Rouperoux, St-Cosme-de-Vair, Perche, France. Upon arriving in Québec, Claude and his friend Julien went to the seigneurie de Beauport (situated between where Québec stands today and the Mount Morency Falls to the north). Claude had come with some funds of his own (inheriting his father's hemp-dancer factory as well as being an accomplished tailor) and had arrived in the French colony not as an indentured servant (i.e. engagé) but rather under the protection of Monsieur Giffard with some freedom to travel.
